Library Reorganized & Renewed
The Cofrin Library that you have come to count on and love is getting better. In an effort to put our focus on providing high quality and timely services, the library staff have been reorganized into four service cluster units. The units include Public Services (circulation, reserves, library technology, and ILL); Research & Outreach Services (research, instruction, marketing, distance education, and scholarly communication); Collection Management Services (selection, deselection, cataloging, metadata, acquisitions, and serials); and Archives Services (University Archives and Area Research Center). Stay tuned for improved and new services in the future!

Critical Thinking in Library Instruction
Library instruction isn’t just telling students where to click, it’s about engaging them in the research process. We want our students to think critically when they do research. Collaborating with an Instruction Librarian is a great way to accomplish this! If you’d like to schedule a library instruction session, please contact Bekky at vrabelr@uwgb.edu or ext. 2666. And don’t forget to look into all the research support options available including course guides and the Embedded Librarian Program!

Come check out our equipment!
The library has a variety of equipment that faculty and students can use, including cameras, voice recorders, webcams, iPads, and laptops! You can check one out for yourself, or if you have an assignment for your students that utilizes media, send them to the library so they can complete their assignment using our collection. We do have a limited amount of equipment, so please encourage your students to come early! Check out our complete collection here or stop by the 3rd floor Public Services Desk to see what we have available for check out today!

Saying Goodbye
This summer we had to say goodbye and congratulations to some dear colleagues. First, after 3+ years with the Cofrin Library as our Resource Sharing Librarian, Mitchell Scott has taken a new position at UW-Milwaukee’s Golda Meir Library. This is a great career opportunity for him and while we will miss him, we wish him the very best. Second goodbye this summer was to Jeanette Skwor along with our congratulations on her retirement. We will certainly miss her and her 20+ year expertise as our Serials Library Services Assistant. We know she will keep herself busy with her enormous reading list. Finally, we congratulate Anne Kasuboski on her retirement. After 35 years of service in government documents, reference and distance education support Anne has earned her retirement. A huge thank you to all three for the difference they made to the UWGB faculty and students.

Updates to Resource Sharing

With the implementation of our new library management system, the way you request materials from other libraries is a little different. You can still use Search@UW to find materials throughout the UW System, but instead of requesting from a specific library, you will just make a request for the item and the system will do the work behind the scenes. If we are unable to obtain a copy through the UW System, you can place an ILLiad request for the item through the link found in the email notification. If you have any questions about Resource Sharing, please contact Lindsay Hahn (formerly Simonsen) at hahnl@uwgb.edu or 920-465-2540. Lindsay will be the interim Resource Sharing contact for fall semester as Mitchell Scott accepted a position at UW-Milwaukee.

Journal Titles A-Z

In May 2015, the UW System Libraries switched to a new library management system and the Journal Titles A to Z feature was lost. However, you can search for journal titles through Search@UW and WorldCat. This guide shows you how. If you have questions, please contact a librarian.
