

UNIVERSITY of WISCONSIN
GREEN BAY
OUTREACH AND EXTENSION

April 25, 2008

Dear Colleague,

We invite you to consider submitting a session proposal for the Tenth Anniversary Symposium hosted by the UW-Green Bay Institute on Dying, Death and Bereavement. Since its inception in 1998, the Institute has hosted annual conferences on topics of high interest to professionals who work with those encountering death and loss. These programs have provided quality training opportunities for social workers, pastoral associates, clergy, licensed professional counselors, health professionals, and funeral home directors. Leaders in the field, including Phyllis Silverman, Ken Doka, Ira Sen Gupta, Ron Barrett and Louis La Grand have presented research-to-practice sessions on critical issues of grief and bereavement.

This year, the tenth anniversary program will feature the work of professionals who have participated in past Institute workshops. We invite you to share your knowledge and to submit a session proposal. Following are the details.

Theme: War, Bereavement and Resilience

A symposium designed for social workers, licensed professional counselors, funeral directors, pastoral associates, clergy, nurses and other human services professionals.

Throughout human history, war and its aftermath have permeated our lives. Bereavement professionals work daily with those who are struggling with multiple losses, including death, unresolved grief, post-traumatic stress disorders and other consequences of war on both veterans and civilians. Workshop sessions will explore the grief-related consequences of war and the strategies people need to make peace.

Date, Time, Location: November 14, 2008, 9- 3:30; UWGB University Union

Please consider our invitation to present a session at this workshop.

On behalf of the Institute on Dying Death and Bereavement, thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Illene Noppe

Illene Noppe, Ph.D.
Founder, Institute on Dying, Death & Bereavement
Professor, Human Development
University of Wisconsin-Green Bay

Barbara McClure-Lukens

Barbara McClure-Lukens, Director
Office of Outreach and Extension
University of Wisconsin-Green Bay
mcclureb@uwgb.edu or 920-465-2222