Psychology major at UW-Green Bay

“I worked in healthcare for 15 years before returning to school with the goal of a bachelor’s degree. When I took my first psychology course with Dr. Crystal Hendrick, I knew I’d found my niche! At the Marinette Campus, my professors treated me like an adult and took a special interest in my education and goals. The campus also had resources to maximize the veterans benefits my husband earned. When the partnership with UW-Green Bay was announced, I was thrilled! It made the path to my bachelor’s degree that much easier!”

“For me, UW-Marinette was the perfect transition from high school to college. My professors provided just the right balance of being there to help you and, at the same time, being there to challenge you. Professor Jennifer Flatt, English, stands out as a teacher who encourages independence but also encourages you to seek out help and other opinions. Staff around the campus are all friendly. Even going to the library was amazing! I felt welcome and always had help finding whatever I needed.”
