Human Biology major at UW-Green Bay

“What I really love about UW-Sheboygan is that it is like a family atmosphere. Professors always know you by name and greet you in the hallway. They remember you. Sheboygan was a great place to get started and gave me a lot of unique opportunities because it was a smaller school. My freshman year I even got to work on a research project through the Wisconsin Space Consortium where we designed an experiment that was involved with a NASA Sounding Rocket program!”

Human Biology degree

“I started college at UW-Sheboygan and heard about UW-Green Bay’s Human Biology/Dietetics program, so I met with one of the Dietetics professors to learn more. I immediately knew I was where I was supposed to be! UW-Green Bay accepted my credits and matched me with a major Dietetics internship program, helping me toward my dream of becoming a professional dietician.”

Business/Finance path
UW-Green Bay | Sheboygan Campus

“As the oldest of four kids, I started college in Sheboygan so I could help out my single mom and work to buy a car. I’m thankful I did because I couldn’t ask for better professors. Small class sizes allow you to get close to your professors. My English teacher even scheduled one-on-one conferences with her students. She took a special interest in me as a bilingual student and helped me to greatly improve my writing skills. I was also able to play basketball on the college team.”
