Clinical Supervision Certificate: Substance Abuse and Co-occurring Disorders

This 30-hour certificate program provides the necessary requirements for licensure as a clinical supervisor of substance abuse counselors. This certificate includes five trainings in the areas of assessment, evaluation, professional responsibility, counselor development and psychopharmacology designed to increase the knowledge base and clinical competencies required of clinical supervisors.

Session 1: Assessment and Evaluation in Clinical Supervision

Friday, November 9, 2018

This training will review how to provide quality care to patients and share the clinical competencies needed to begin the supervisor/supervisee collaborative relationship. Participants will learn the practice of the ongoing evaluation process, how to implement Individual Development Plans, the basics of administrative documentation and how to manage challenges with clinical providers.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this training, participants will:

- Learn and develop skills in clinical competency in order to manage supervisor/supervisee relationships
- Understand and manage administrative documentation and techniques and tools to manage problem clinical providers
- Learn and understand the ongoing evaluation process, including how to implement an Individual Development Plan

Trainer Biography

Mari Kriescher, MS, MAC, LPC, CSAC, ICS, is the Behavioral Health Director and Electronic Medical Record (EMR) Project Sponsor, and has been working in the substance abuse and mental health field for 21 years. Kriescher has worked as a Behavioral Health Director for the Oneida Nation since 2006, providing leadership, program development and clinical and support staff development working in clinical teams. Kriescher specializes in addictions, mental health, co-occurring issues and clinical supervision.

Session 2: Counselor Development Through a Trauma-Informed Lens

Thursday, January 17, 2019

This training provides the unique opportunity to study the developmental process of an AODA counselor. With the goal of developing an effective, values-driven counselor, stages of a counselor's development will be explored using several theoretical perspectives and will address unique issues that come with the supervision of an AODA counselor. Trauma-informed systems of care will be integrated into the developmental stages that are studied.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this training, participants will:

- Learn the stages of professional counselor development and discuss interventions and approaches
- Understand trauma-informed systems of care and how to integrate them into the counselor's clinical development
- Understand and be able to recognize secondary trauma among staff members and address resiliency of both supervisor and counselor

Trainer Biography

Julie Feld, LCSW, CSAC, ICS, received her Bachelor's Degree in Social Work from UW-Eau Claire in 1982. In 1987, she completed her Master's Degree in Social Work from UW-Madison and was granted an AODA certification in 1988. Throughout her 36 years of practice, Feld has worked with persons with AODA and mental health issues as well as other medical and neurological disorders which have affected their lives and the lives of others. She is currently the Director of Outpatient Services at Foundations Health and Wholeness in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Session 3: Successful Management and Administration in the Helping Professions

Friday, February 8, 2019

This training will help practitioners learn to lead a team of professionals to their best potential. Content includes learning how to solve complex cultural and interpersonal issues and change management. It will also provide practitioners the opportunity to improve skills in the areas of staff conflict resolution, team building, resilient leadership, mentoring and supervision techniques, organizational culture change, fiscal responsibility and organizational setbacks.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this training, participants will:

- Examine their personal management style, the effects it has on managing personnel, teams, and agencies and learn to maximize their management style and that of their personnel
- Learn and develop skills in the areas of conflict resolution, building team consensus and performance improvement management
- Understand and articulate innovative perspectives of management and leadership styles including resilient leadership, mentoring and reflective supervision and be able to apply what they have learned to their workplace
- Learn and develop organizational change and fiscal management skills

Trainer Biography

Dana Johnson, MSW, holds a Master's of Social Work from the UW-Milwaukee and is a Licensed Advanced Practice Social Worker in the State of Wisconsin. His primary practice areas post-graduation included medical social work and administration and management in child welfare/child protective services. Additionally, he has more than 12 years of experience in diversity and inclusivity training in working in helping profession roles with and alongside members of the LGBTQ+ community. This experience provides unique perspectives on human sexuality, sociobiological theories, identity development, gender theory and a collaborative approach using a social work and helping profession perspective. Johnson currently holds the position of Lecturer and Child Welfare Coordinator at UW-Green Bay.

Session 4: Responsibilities, Statutes and Regulations

Friday, March 15, 2019

This training will explore the responsibilities, statutes and regulations regarding Wisconsin DSPS licensure and certification for substance abuse counselors and supervisors. Practitioners will discuss possible ethical situations in working with supervisees, as well as professional boundary setting. In addition, attendees will gain knowledge on self-care and compassion fatigue. This training will also satisfy continuing education credit hours for biennium ethics and boundaries training for social workers.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this training, participants will:

- Examine Wisconsin statutes as they pertain to supervisors, counselors and state certified clinics
- Identify appropriate characteristics of supervisors
- Explore boundary issues with supervisors and supervisees
- Examine practice scenarios involving ethical dilemmas with supervisors and supervisees
- Outline risk factors and elements of self-care supervisors may face
- Explore compassion fatigue

Trainer Biography

a Substance Abuse Specialty License in the state of Wisconsin with 14 years of direct practice in county mental health and substance abuse services. Grimm is a full-time instructor in the Human Services/Substance Abuse Counselor Education Programs as well as the Traffic Safety Coordinator at Northeast Wisconsin Technical College.

Session 5: Psychopharmacology

Friday, April 5, 2019

This training on psychopharmacology will provide a detailed description of psychotropic medications, illicit chemicals and other mood-altering substances. The training will help participants develop an understanding of medications used to treat both mental health and AODA conditions as well as those that are used in recreational settings. In addition, this training will address treatment approaches used to assist those dealing with mental health, AODA or dual-diagnosis concerns.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this training, participants will:

- Identify psychotropic medications used to treat psychiatric conditions
- Identify illicit chemicals and other mood-altering substances seen in the treatment of substance use disorders
- Understand therapeutic and psychoeducational approaches used in the treatment of clients with mental health, AODA and dual-diagnosis conditions
- Discuss underlying mental health disorders that are typically associated with drug and alcohol abuse and dependence

Trainer Biography

Michael Steger, LPC, CSAC, ICS, has over 20 years in the field of mental health and AODA. He currently is a Mental Health Supervisor for the Outagamie County Department of Health and Human Services – Mental Health and AODA

Division, where he oversees 12 full-time staff and 130 clients in the Comprehensive Community Services Adult Program. Ethics and End-of-Life Care: A RESPECTFUL Approach

This training uses the RESPECTFUL model* as a framework, while exploring the multiple identities that influence ethical decision-making at the end of life. The RESPECTFUL model assesses clients through 10 dimensions: Religion/spirituality, economic/class background, sexual orientation and/or gender identity, personal style and education, ethnic/racial identity, chronological/lifespan challenges, trauma, family background, unique physical characteristics and location of residence and language differences. This interactive training engages participants in high levels of dialogue as they examine ethics and boundaries from an ecological perspective. Current information about Wisconsin DSPS licensure and certification will be included.

First Nations Workshops

UW-Green Bay’s First Nations workshops will increase participants’ understanding of issues related to the history, culture and tribal sovereignty of the federally recognized Native American Nations and bands in Wisconsin. Each workshop provides experiential learning and accurate, authentic information designed to improve and enrich professional practice that is culturally appropriate and reflective of First Nations peoples.

All four of these workshops use teaching methods reflecting tribal oral tradition, Elder epistemology and participatory learning. In addition, they will also reflect tribal core values sometimes referred to as the “4Rs” — respect, reciprocity, relationship and responsibility. Participants will learn First Nations content but also experience it in cultural context and practice consistent with First Nations cultural norms.

These workshops are appropriate for educators and classroom teachers, as well as social workers, licensed professional counselors, marriage and family therapists, nursing home administrators and other health and human services professionals.

Resistance, Change and Colonization

Co-Facilitated by Forrest Brooks and Lisa Poupart

Friday, October 5, 2018

Participants will examine the ways in which Euro-American political, economic, legal and social power facilitated the near genocide of First Nations. Throughout the session, participants will engage in discussion to dispel popular stereotypes regarding First Nations peoples and how these stereotypes impact them today. Whenever possible, the exploration of American Indians will draw upon the Wisconsin First Nations for specific examples and illustrations. These Nations include the Anishinaabeg, Menominee, Oneida, Hochunk, Mohican, Brotherton and Potawatomi. The session will conclude with an exploration of the perseverance of First Nations peoples in the United States today.

Indigenous Education, Euro-American Policy and Historical Trauma

Co-Facilitated by Forrest Brooks and Lisa Poupart

Friday, November 2, 2018

This session provides an in-depth examination of specific Euro-American education policies including the U.S. Federal Indian boarding schools. Education is examined as a colonial tool of assimilation and institutional oppression. Unresolved historic grief syndrome and historical trauma will be presented as lenses for understanding and addressing social issues in First Nations communities today, including suicide, domestic violence and substance abuse.

Ethics and Boundaries: Working with First Nations Communities

Co-facilitated by Jen Schanen and Forrest Brooks

Friday, January 18, 2019

This interactive session focuses on ethics and boundaries as they apply to professionals working with First Nations communities. Participants will examine personal worldviews, as well as professional obligations and boundaries and will identify situations that are unique to professionals working with First Nations communities and/or with First Nations peoples. Participants will apply ethical decision-making models to scenario-based discussions. Through experiential learning and accurate, authentic information, participants will enrich professional practice that is culturally appropriate and reflective of First Nations peoples.

First Nations Generational Healing for Professionals

Co-Facilitated by Forrest Brooks and Lisa Poupart

Friday, February 15, 2019

The final session in the series focuses on the idea and practice of generational healing. A brief contextualization of historical and generational trauma will start the session and participants will be grounded to a renewal of relationships using Indigenous protocols. Discussion will cover various examples of Indigenous traditions, including how to relate to their healthy ways of being and how they relate to the world. In addition, the concept of the medicine wheel, which is used as a way of connecting and building relationships, will be reviewed in depth. Participants will be given the opportunity to discuss and apply the concepts of the practice of healing while focusing on their own ways of interacting and working with Indigenous peoples.

About the Instructors

Lisa M. Poupart, Ph.D., is a member of the Lac du Flambeau Band of Lake Superior Anishinaabeg. She is an Associate Professor of First Nations Education, Women’s and Gender Studies and Humanities at UW-Green Bay. Dr. Poupart chairs the UW-Green Bay First Nations Education Program and co-directs the Education Center for First Nations Education. She also directs the First Nations Education Doctoral Program (Ed.D.) — the first doctoral program at UW-Green Bay. Her work centers on First Nations generational healing of historic trauma. She is an international board member of Debwewin, a nonprofit First Nations organization dedicated to education about traditional healing systems to promote the wellness of all beings and the Earth.

Forrest Brooks, MA, is a member of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin, with family lines also in the Stockbridge-Munsee and Menominee Nation communities. He serves as a Lecturer in First Nations Education within the Humanities program at UW-Green Bay. He served as an Academic Advisor, assisting in outreach to several Indigenous communities in Wisconsin. Prior to working at the University, Brooks worked with the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin in several capacities in the creation of Oneida language teaching materials and as a teacher of Oneida language. He is part of the team that created the First Nations Ed.D. — the first doctoral program at UW-Green Bay.

Jen Schanen, MSW, APSW, is a Lecturer and Bachelor of Social Work Field Coordinator with UW-Green Bay Professional Social Work Programs. Previously, Schanen worked at a grassroots nonprofit organization, serving primarily Native American children and families. She coordinated domestic violence, sexual assault and teen pregnancy prevention and outreach efforts — both in direct practice settings with youth and community, and in program development and evaluation capacities.

Continuing Professional Education

The UW-Green Bay Social Work Professional Program, accredited by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE), the UW Oshkosh Council on Professional Counseling, the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs (CACREP), the Wisconsin Department of Safety and Professional Services and UW-Green Bay, accredited by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools approves continuing education training for UW-Green Bay and is accepted by the State of Wisconsin as continuing education credit hours.

For the biennium beginning March 1, 2017 and ending February 28, 2019, 30 continuing education credits are required. Of those 30 credits, four credit hours must be in professional ethics and boundaries related to the practice of marriage and family therapy, professional counseling or social work. See Wisconsin Statutes and Administrative Code for details. Available at https://docs.legis.wisconsin.gov/code/admin_code/mpsw.

Performing Arts

Theater by the Bay Mary Poppins Jr.

Book by Julian Fellowes
Music and Lyrics by
Richard Sherman and Robert Sherman
Co-created by Cameron Mackintosh
Creative Director Brittany Welch
Technical Director Dave Hendrick

The jack-of-all trades, Bert, introduces us to England in 1910 and the troubled Banks family. Young Jane and Michael have sent many a nanny packing before Mary Poppins arrives. Using a combination of magic and common sense, she must teach the family members how to value each other again. Mary Poppins takes the children on many magical and memorable adventures, but Jane and Michael aren't the only ones upon whom she has a profound effect. Even grown-ups can learn a lesson or two from the nanny who advises that "Anything can happen if you let it."

Cooking and Baking

Cake Decorating

Instructor: Marissa Axtell, Owner
Marissa's Country Kitchen

Interested in cake decorating and looking to improve your skills? Now's your chance! Learn how to stack, frost and decorate cakes and cupcakes in this two-night class.

The first class will be all about frosting. Learn how to make Marissa's popular frosting, and the techniques of frosting cakes and cupcakes. In the second class, participants will put those skills to the test when they frost their cake/cupcakes. You will also learn how to make decorations and will leave with a finished product.

Participants will be required to bring an unfrosted 8-inch cake, or 12 unfrosted cupcakes to the second class.

Tuesdays, October 9 and 16, 2018
6-8 p.m., Marinette Campus Cafeteria

Fee: $39

About the Instructor

Marissa Axtell's love of baking started as a hobby. As friends and family started to take notice of this hobby, and as they enjoyed the fruits of her labor, they started to make requests for her baking. The requests kept continuing and evolved into her starting her business, Marissa's Country Kitchen, this past year. Her customers delight in her ability to combine both classic and unexpected flavors.

Marissa has catered events from birthdays, graduation and retirement parties to weddings. Marissa's goal when creating for her customer is to understand the event and what the customer is looking for. With that understanding, she then creates a masterpiece of a desert that will complement the event and venue and delight those in attendance.
