

Campus Clarity Frequently Asked Questions

1) Is this course mandatory?

Yes, this course is being required of all students. The only automatic exceptions are high school students taking UW-Green Bay courses in their high school, and special/ non-degree seeking students.

2) Is there a charge for this course?

No, there are no additional fees or charges for this course.

3) I have been doing the program, but when I get to the policy part, the program gets stuck. How do I get past this?

We are aware of an issue where the Internet Explorer browser can get hung up at this part. Campus Clarity highly recommends doing the program using the Google Chrome browser to avoid this problem. Also if you are doing the course on a smartphone or tablet, there can also be issues with these pdf documents. Please use a laptop or desktop computer to avoid these complications.

4) I am a victim of sexual assault and I am concerned taking this course will trigger some past issues for me. Do I need to take it?

We want to be sensitive to this issue and offer choices to those who at some point in their life had power and control taken away from them. We ask that you take the course up as far as you are comfortable. If you are unable to complete it, please contact Caitlin Henriksen to request an exception based on a past traumatic experience. She will set up a time to talk with you one on one either in person or by phone if you are an online only student.

Caitlin serves as our Health Educator for UW-GREEN BAY and has extensive experience working with sexual assault victims of all ages. Please note she is a confidential reporter so your name will not be shared with anyone else unless there is a perceived personal safety concern for you or for others.

5) I'm a graduate student, and I received two notices. Do I have to take both?

You will only be required to complete the course Think About It: Graduate Students. If you received a second request, please forward it to Caitlin Henriksen with the explanation that you have already completed the graduate student course, and ask her to remove your name from the other course.

6) I am concerned about sharing too much confidential information. How private will this be and who can see it?

The Think About It course will ask some questions you may consider to be personal. It does this by using either multiple choice, or a sliding scale (i.e. strongly agree to strongly disagree) options for answering questions. Answers will only be shared with the university after the data has been de-identified. So your answers are never connected directly to your account. For the most personal questions, there is an option for the user to select “I prefer not to respond”. The only individual information university officials will have access to is whether the user has started, is in progress, or has completed the course.

7) I have already completed the Think About It course while attending another UW school. Do I need to take it again?

Yes, even if you have completed the Think About It course at another campus, because the course reviews our campus and community specific policies and resources, you will need to take it again. This time you will learn what UW-GREEN BAY and all four campus communities have to offer you or your classmates who may need assistance

I am an online only and/or non-traditional student. Do I need to take this course?

Yes, we recognize the content for this course needs to be adjusted to its audience, and has been. The version of the course you have been assigned is different from the one assigned to our traditional age, residential or on campus students. Please keep in mind some of your classmates still fall in that traditional category, so there is some overlap in the courses to assist you in working with classmates of all types and ages.

8) I have had similar trainings during my military service. Can that exempt me from taking this course?

No, we appreciate that all levels and branches of our military have stepped up their training in recent years around issues of sexual harassment and assault. This background will serve you well in many stages of your future endeavors. We will still require this training because of how it educates our campus community about the university's policies and resources to assist individuals who have had to live through these encounters at any point in their life.

9) I am a Bellin College student. Do we need to participate in this course, and similar requirements at Bellin?

Yes, we are requiring all Bellin students to complete this course so that during their time as UW Green Bay students, or while they are living on campus, they know what is expected of them, and where to go for help if they need it from the UW-Green Bay campus.

10) I was sanctioned to take a different Think About It class for my alcohol or drug policy violation. Do I need to do this one too?

Yes, you will need to complete this course as well. There is very little overlap between the alcohol or drug courses and this one. So you have plenty of new information to learn to help protect yourself or those around you.
