

He Carries the News

Back in the day the Oneidas lived far apart. When someone died, from the remaining someone would be selected to carry the news. This man will run and yell at certain intervals. The Oneidas would know that something happened and they would hear by his yelling how it is when someone yells. They would ask him what news he carries. He'd have a strong voice to have the job of carrying the news where the Oneidas live.