The graduate school interview is an opportunity for the selection committee to learn more about your goals and qualifications as they relate to a particular program of study. Interviews will vary among programs and the individuals who are conducting the interviews.

Interviewers will be looking for three things when you answer questions:

1. Your answer
2. How well you can organize your thinking
3. How well you express yourself

For more information about preparing for interviews and answering questions, refer to the Interviewing resources available on the Career Services' website.

Below is a sampling of questions you might be asked during an interview:

Field-Specific Questions & Current Events:

You will undoubtedly encounter questions that related specifically to your chosen field of study. Be certain that you are aware of current trends, issues and controversy in your field so that you will be able to answer questions intelligibly. Below are a few examples:

- What do you believe to be the major trends in your intended career field at this time?
- What do you think about _____ (current event)?
- What problem in the world troubles you most? What would you do about it?
- What is the most important development in this field over the past 25 years, and why?

Questions You Might Ask During a Graduate School Interview

Asking questions not only helps you as a candidate determine the “fit” of the program with your desired academic and career objectives, but it also communicates to the selection committee the extent of your interest in their program. Potential questions might include:

- What characteristics distinguish this program from others in the same academic field?
- How long does it take typically to complete the program?
- Where are recent alumni employed? What do most graduates do after graduation?
- What types of financial aid are offered? What criteria are used for choosing recipients?
- What opportunities are available through the program to gain practical work experience? Are there opportunities such as assistantships, fellowships or internships available? What are the deadlines to apply for these opportunities?
- Are there any scholarships or fellowships available? How do I apply?
- Do most students publish an article/conduct research prior to graduation?
- I've read articles written by _____ and _____. To what extent are students involved in assisting these faculty members with related research projects?
- What types of research projects are current students pursuing?
- How are graduate test scores, grades, letters of recommendations, and personal statements evaluated for the admissions process?
- What is the selection timeline? When will candidates be notified about their acceptance into the program?
