Cost of Attendance vs. Direct Costs

- Student Information System (SIS) award summary screen shows cost of attendance figures. These are average figures, not actual costs.
- Look at these 4 direct costs:
 - Tuition
 - Books
 - Housing
 - Food
- Compare direct costs to your financial aid award to determine if you will need additional funding.

GB Orientation Booklet

See the GB Orientation Guide Book for financial aid information followed by the Cost of College and the Estimated Cost and Financial Aid Worksheet

UNIVERSITY of WISCONSIN
GREEN BAY

The Cost of Attendance is an average living expense budget used in determining a student's aid eligibility and tends to be more than a student's actual charges. Direct costs are the costs that are actually due to the school each term. The GB Orientation Guide Book is found on the GB Orientation website at uwgb.edu/gb-orientation. The GB Orientation Guide Book has information regarding financial aid and student employment, as well as the Estimated Cost and Financial Aid Worksheet. Use the worksheet in the guide book to compare the direct costs to your financial aid offer to determine if you need to look for additional funding options.

2021-22 Estimated Direct Costs

UNIVERSITY of WISCONSIN

This slide shows 2021-22 cost estimates. These estimates are assuming full time enrollment PER SEMESTER. Tuition is based on state of residence. Housing cost is the cost of a standard freshman residence hall on the Green Bay campus; food cost used is the Phoenix All Access plan which is the plan that is selected the most by our student population. There are many other dining plan options. Book costs vary based on a student's enrolled courses in each term. A full time student cost typically averages to be about $400 per semester. Refer to the GB Orientation Guidebook to see these cost estimates.
