Become a Community-Based Residential Facilities (CBRF) Instructor

Train-the-Trainer courses have been approved by the Wisconsin Department of Health Services to offer an opportunity for individuals to become approved as Community-Based Residential Facilities (CBRF) instructors, if they don't meet other criteria of experience or profession.

These courses provide program knowledge, training skills and curriculum, enabling high-quality training within organizations.

Core Courses

- Medication Administration
- Fire Safety
- Standard Precautions
- First Aid & Choking

When It Comes Time for Renewal

Once you become an approved Train-the-Trainer, you will need to renew your instructor status every two years, which includes obtaining continuing education hours. WCA offers online continuing education courses that can be completed at your own pace in the comfort of your own office or facility.

Trainers can choose to receive their continuing education hours in the subject they are approved in, or they can take three hours of Adult Learning Education as part of their required continuing education hours.
