Two New Databases: Humanities, History, Philosophy & Religion

Thanks to our friends at Madison, we now have access to two primary source databases. The Digital Library of Classic Protestant Texts and The Digital Library of the Catholic Reformation brings together primary sources on the Reformation Era. Find primary sources: theological writings, biblical commentaries, confessional documents, social and political works, sermons, letters, and polemical treatises. You can find these databases and more on our Databases page. Have questions or feedback? Contact our Research Help email.

APA, MLA, Chicago? Librarians are Prepared to Help

The Research Help desk librarians get citation questions throughout the semester, but with annotated bibliographies and final projects due around the corner, our chat, in-person, and email reference gets more citation specific questions. Librarians are always ready to help so if you notice your students are struggling with citations schedule a short, drop-in session for an overview or citation activity. Citation assistance is available through the Learning Center and the Research Help desk.
