Humanities E-Books Trial from the American Council of Learned Societies

From now through April 30th the library has made the ACLS Humanities E-book collection fully accessible to staff and students via both Search@UW and the Databases A-Z list. Search under the “Everything” or “Articles” scope in Search@UW at the present time, since these are not in our library catalog in Search@UW. The books are linked in the same way as our other e-book collections, through the “View Online” tab in the Search@UW results list. Because this is a trial, you will need a username/password to actually see the books. Links to the page containing the username and password are included in the notes on both the “FindIt!” menu that appears when you click on “view online”, and the description on the Databases A-Z list, so you will have a link to the login information right where you need it. Use the Databases A-Z link to browse the titles, authors, and subjects included in the collection.

If you have problems with accessing these books, please contact Melissa Platkowski for assistance at platkowm@uwgb.edu or x2764.

LIBQUAL Survey

From April 7th – April 28th the library will be taking part in the LibQUAL+ survey. LibQUAL+ is a library assessment survey developed and managed by the Association of Research Libraries (ARL) and is conducted at more than 1,200 libraries throughout the US and institutions in Africa, Asia, Australia and Europe. The feedback that you and your students provide as a part of the survey will provide the Cofrin Library with valuable data about existing library services, how we are meeting campus expectations, how we can effectively allocate resources, and highlight possible new library service areas. The aggregate data will allow the Cofrin Library to compare results to other participating University of Wisconsin libraries and peer institutions within the US.

An invitation email with be sent campus wide on April 7th along with a link to the LibQUAL+ survey. Links to the survey will also be made available from the Library homepage, www.uwgb.edu/library and on several pages within the www.uwgb.edu webpage. The survey takes on average around 15 minutes to complete and after completing the survey you can enter your email address to be included into a drawing for one of several prizes. Please take the time to complete this survey and we thank you in advance for your participation and your feedback. Any question or comments about the survey can be directed to libqual@uwgb.edu.
Google Scholar & Web of Science

New in Google Scholar <http://scholar.google.com> is information on the number of articles in the Web of Science core collection citing a title in your result list. Just click on the link to flip to the Web of Science list of articles.

Campus workstations are set up to let you check the library's holdings of a journal and link you to the text. If you don’t see the full-text, click on the “more” button to go to the “Find It @ UW Green Bay” service. Not all publishers participate in Google Scholar and its holdings links, but many major publishers do. You can also set your home pc to check Cofrin Library holdings in Google Scholar; see our handout at http://libguides.uwgb.edu/googlescholar for instructions.

Get Ahead Before the End is Near...

The end of the semester is fast approaching and if you checked out items from the library, these will most likely be due in the next month or two. Please return any unneeded items to the library book-drops on the concourse level, second floor, or third floor. Most items for faculty and staff, excluding equipment, are due back at the end of May. Typically items won’t be eligible for renewals until the beginning of May. If you would like to renew these items, you can do so through your online library accounts or by contacting us at x2540.

More on Wiley Online Library: 14,000+ e-books

As the UW System investigates the use of e-books, UW libraries now have access to Wiley Online Library. This collection includes over 14,000 e-books covering a wide range of subject areas, including life, health, and physical sciences, social sciences, and the humanities. Users can search by keyword, title, author, or browse by subject area. Content can be downloaded in PDF format. Wiley Online also includes thousands of journal articles. When searching the database directly, please be aware that we do not subscribe to everything Wiley publishes. The open padlock icon is your indicator that the full-text of that article or book is available to you. You can access Wiley Online Library by going to the Databases A-Z link on the library website. Wiley e-books are also discoverable using our Search@UW search tool on the library website.

What is your first clear memory of visiting a library?
One of my first clear memories is visiting my small town Carnegie Library in Berlin, WI, as a grade schooler. I must have about eight, and like many girls at that age was absolutely horse crazy. I desperately wanted to read Black Beauty. The librarians weren’t convinced that I could read well enough to understand the book. So they made me sit down and read passages out of it and explain it to them. I must have done ok, because they did let me check it out.

- Scrabble or LIFE?  Scrabble—but can’t we play trivia instead?
- Spring or Fall?  Fall
- Mashed potatoes or French fries?  Mashed potatoes—but real ones
- California or Florida?  California
- Morning or Night?  Morning
- Beer or Wine?  Wine, but a Margarita would be even better.
- Penguin or Kangaroo?  Penguin.

What do you like best about UWGB?
I love the fact that with the interdisciplinary focus and non-traditional majors, people aren’t as entrenched in their own little silos. People seem to mix more and work together to solve problems and make progress toward common goals. It’s also a beautiful campus—and you have to love the tunnel system in bad weather!
