Dear Reference: The student giving you this form is applying for acceptance into the Regional Center for Math and Science summer program at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay in Green Bay, Wisconsin. Before you complete the reference you may find the following information helpful.

PROGRAM BACKGROUND:
The Regional Center for Math and Science, RCMS, is a joint project of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay (UWGB) and the U.S. Department of Education. RCMS resides under the Federal TRIO umbrella as an Upward Bound Math Science program. The purpose of the program is two-fold:

1) to increase high school students' skills in math and science
2) to encourage low income and/or first generation college students to prepare for professional careers in math and science while still in high school.

PROGRAM FORMAT:
RCMS is a six-week summer residential experience. Students live in university dorms, eat in the dining hall, attend classes in the mornings, and participate in faculty research projects in university laboratories in the afternoons. The RCMS program includes weekly local field trips, weekend area field trips, and a weeklong stay at an outdoor science education camp in northwest Wisconsin. In addition, participants engage in structured recreational and social activities. All student expenses, including transportation to and from RCMS, are paid for by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education. There are no costs to students.

RCMS PARTICIPANTS:
Participation in RCMS is restricted to current high school freshmen and sophomores who meet federal eligibility criteria of coming from a low-income household and/or being a first generation college student. Eligible students should be motivated to follow a rigorous academic program for the six weeks in the summer and have the maturity, independence, and willingness to live away from home. A selection committee reviews all applicants, and the process is competitive. Therefore, recommendations that provide better detail and insight help the applicant score better. Upon acceptance, students participate in program activities during the school year and summer until they graduate from high school.
