Modern Languages

The Modern Languages Program includes majors in German, French and Spanish. Results from the current review indicate that Modern Languages provides a well-rounded education to its students and is particularly effective in the areas of communication, global understanding and critical thinking. All three majors do an excellent job of integrating their curriculum and students into the community or by providing international opportunities for students to enhance their language skills. All three major programs were asked to carefully review their curriculum with an eye to possibly eliminating some elective courses. Continuation of all three majors was recommended at all levels of review.
